

FIVE SMALLPOX CASES REPORTED

Health Authorities Make Effort to Trace Neighborhood Outbreak.

ORDER STRICT QUARANTINE
DELAY IN OPENING ISOLATION
HOSPITAL DUE TO EXPENSE.

Five cases of smallpox have been reported to the health department from one locality, and a diligent effort is being made to run down the source and prevent any further spread of the disease. Among those who have contracted the disease is L. J. Haddock, secretary of the Manufacturers & Merchants' association. According to officials of the department, the disease was brought here by an unknown man who contracted it at Provo. Search is being made for him, and in the meantime a rigid quarantine is being kept over the houses where the afflicted persons live.

The names of those reported suffering from smallpox are: Frank Roberts and Mrs. Jennie Roberts, 222 Colfax avenue; L. J. Haddock, 219 Colfax avenue; Genevieve Greenhalgh, 649 Colfax avenue; William Holmes, 288 North First West street. In speaking of the criticism of the city health department for the manner in which smallpox cases have been handled, Dr. S. G. Paul, assistant city physician, last night said:

LON J. HADDOCK,
One of the five people reported ill of smallpox.

"The expense to the city of caring for a single smallpox case at the quarantine hospital is very heavy. Several weeks ago a chambermaid in a rooming house was found to be suffering from the disease. She was taken to the quarantine hospital and the case cost the city $20. This was divided as follows: Nurse, $5; attendant to care for furnace and do other rough work, $5; fuel, food, drugs and other expenses, $5."

"When the case of Lon J. Haddock of Colfax avenue was reported, Mrs. Haddock wished her husband removed for treatment to the quarantine hospital. As it was only a mild case of smallpox, it was decided that the city should not be put to the expense of opening the quarantine hospital for a single patient."

Action is imperative.

"That was about a week ago. Later it was found that Miss Genevieve Greenhalgh, who resides at the Crager home at 649 Colfax avenue, and William Holmes, of 288 North First West street, were suffering from smallpox. It was then necessary to open the quarantine hospital and Haddock was told that he would be taken there if he wished to go. He first expressed willingness to go, but later decided to remain in quarantine at his own house. This arrangement is satisfactory to the health authorities, as long as the quarantine rules are observed."

"At the home of Mrs. Roberts, who also lives in Colfax avenue, there is a 4-year-old boy, Frank Roberts, who is suffering from smallpox. His mother was told that she could go to the quarantine hospital with the child if she decided to have the boy taken there for treatment. As she has three other young children, she decided that she could not leave them. For that reason, the Roberts are expected to arrive in Salt Lake today. The object of the visit to Salt Lake has not been given out. It is understood, however, that the purpose is twofold, to look over the site of the proposed new depot in Salt Lake and to learn more accurately the extent of the epidemic of the labor troubles on the line."

HOW YOU DO OR YOU DON'T GET LATE NEWS FROM GRAND JURY ROOM

In the federal building there is much gossip in the corridors always as to what the federal grand jury is doing. The oath of secrecy is laid upon the jurors and the district attorney's office. The district attorney long ago requested the newspaper reporters not to ask him or his assistant what the nature of the testimony is that was being placed before the grand jury, for it was a useless thing to do, inasmuch as he could not disclose anything that might transpire within the jury room.

There are resources which the reporters have, but those resources are dimly limited when it comes to bringing off a real coup in the way of printing what the grand jury is doing and running the risk of being put in the penitentiary by the judge.

Therefore the newspaper men let the grand jury alone pretty much and in view of the fact that the grand jury lets the newspaper men alone pretty much, it seems to be about an even break.

The newspapers and any other person who is interested may lie in wait for the witnesses who appear before the jury and from their identity, occupation and general reliability and respectability say whether the witness has been called in this case or that, especially when these witnesses have appeared in the preliminary examinations before the commissioners in the proceedings when charges first were brought.

But it becomes a more difficult matter to find out what the government is doing when it shoots in a lot of strangers who have never been before a commissioner and who have never, so far as the record shows, been connected with any case that ever was brought up in any court.

Thus it is that there is much speculation about the particular line of business which yesterday's abundant number of witnesses before the grand jury was engaged in and for what reason. There was a knowing look when Captain George E. Hair of the special service of the land department, who is known as a "special agent," appeared upon the scene, and there was further conjecturing when witnesses from Idaho came blithely to give testimony. And yet more puzzling conjectures when prominent Utah ranchmen and landholders were called.

"It is the timber land frauds," whispered a knowing one.

"Timber land frauds—don't you remember that everybody said they were squelched?"

"What is, then?"

"S—h. It is the public domain. Somebody's been trying to fence it in."

Anyhow, the list of witnesses before the grand jury who called for their "time" at the marshal's office yesterday, or will after they have testified, is generally conceded to have something to say about public lands. Here is the list:

R. W. Holmes and Henry L. Smith of Mackay, Ida.; Lee Kerr and T. J. Kerr of Charles E. Jensen from Challis, Idaho; George F. Purdum and Charles R. Walters, Shoshone, Ida.; A. H. Wilson, W. S. Bards and George W. Hallett, Idaho; J. L. Baxter, Soldier, Mo.; B. J. McGee, Corral, Ida.; Captain Hair, special agent of the department of the interior, with headquarters in this city; Edwin Stott, Jr., and H. V. Adams, Meadow, Utah; David I. Cranford, Z. Cranford, and Mel Chase, Springville, Utah; George H. Robinson, Robinson, Utah; W. R. Greenhalgh, Santaquin and A. E. Cox, Goshen.

At a meeting of the board of governors of the Commercial club and a special committee of the Grand Army of the Republic yesterday afternoon, it was decided that an effort will be made to secure the national G. A. R. encampment in 1908 for Salt Lake. For some weeks a special committee has been investigating the cost of entertainment and the availability of the accommodations for the old soldiers. It was decided that the money necessary for entertainment could be secured and that there were sufficient accommodations for all the visitors.

The next G. A. R. encampment will be held at Toledo, and a large delegation of old soldiers will be expected to attend, for the purpose of making a strong bid for the encampment. The only competitor of Salt Lake for the encampment is Seattle, but the veterans of Utah are confident that they can secure the meeting.

Is Great Honor.

This gathering of old soldiers is easily the most unique and inspiring of any national convention that can be secured and the city getting it always feels greatly honored. The old army in blue that fought for the Union in the Civil war nearly half a century ago is fast passing and it is only a question of a few years when these great gatherings of the veterans will have gone into history.

At the 1906 national G. A. R. encampment it is expected that about 15,000 of the half a million survivors of the great struggle will be present. If Salt Lake is fortunate enough to secure the encampment it is expected that, in addition to the 15,000 veterans, there will be 20,000 to 25,000 people in attendance. This number will be increased to 100,000 on the day of the big parade. In this parade all of the veterans who are able so to do will march in line, those from each state marching under their old battle flags and with their old army decorations. In the parade the troops from Fort Douglas, the National Guard, the High School cadets, the Sons of Veterans, the Spanish-American War Veterans and other military and patriotic organizations will participate.

Will Provide Accommodations.

In order properly to entertain the old soldiers and visitors who come to Salt Lake, the G. A. R. and the Commercial club and the city government, as well as private contributions from business men and others who will be materially benefited by the encampment, will be asked to take in guests during the week.

The encampment will last a week, and will probably be held late in August. The encampment will be absolutely non-political and non-sectarian, the old soldiers advocating simply patriotism, and it is probable that the tabernacle will be used as the convention hall during the entire week. Through the interest of Senator Reed Smoot, the church authorities have offered the use of this building to the old soldiers.

A committee consisting of G. A. Black, chairman; Colonel George B. Squires, Colonel R. G. Stear of the G. A. R. and Murray H. Campbell, president of the board of governors of the Commercial club, are now at work interesting the people of Salt Lake, as well as the old soldiers in all parts of the country, in the attempt of Salt Lake to secure the convention.

DYNAMITE IN HIS GRIP

Thrifty Greek Is Arrested on Suspicion of Being a Maker of Infernal Machines.

Thrifty George Angulos, a Greek, caused a big scene at the Oregon Short Line depot yesterday morning. Angulos formerly worked at Bingham. When he lost his job he had a supply of dynamite on hand, which he was unwilling to throw away. He therefore put it into his valise when he started for Salt Lake on Thursday. He checked the valise and did not see it until yesterday morning. He was at once arrested, as the men in the baggage room had noticed that this protruding from a hole in the Greek's grip.

He was at first suspected that Angulos was an anarchist and that he had secured the explosive for the purpose of making a bomb in the depot.

Angulos was able to prove that he was a hardworking, thrifty and peaceable man and was released from custody.

F. C. Schramm Confirms Guarantee on Hyomei, Cure for Catarrh.

As some people have raised the question as to whether F. C. Schramm will refund the money if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it in curing catarrh, he wants The Salt Lake Herald to state positively that this offer is a fact, and is made in perfect good faith.

It is the best proof of Hyomei's curative powers in all catarrhal troubles. You do not risk a cent in testing its healing merits, for F. C. Schramm takes all the risk.

If you have catarrh, try this wonderful medicated air of Hyomei. It does not drug or disarrange the stomach, but is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, part of every outfit, so that the medication reaches the most remote air cells, destroying all catarrhal germs and curing the disease. Under F. C. Schramm's guarantee you can lose nothing by giving Hyomei a trial.
